- he/she does not ensure that the activities of the committee or group support the mission and strategic plan of the Association
- he/she does not ensure that the activities of the committee or group comply with the relevant terms of reference.

7. Procurement Process

7.1. As a general guide, three written quotations should normally be sought for any purchases over £3,000. If after doing so, less than three submissions are received, BASES is not obliged to seek further quotations. Records of all suppliers approached should be maintained and their responses including documented advice from suppliers who have declined to submit a quote. Overall, it is recommended that a common sense approach is used. For example, if individuals have a good reason for wanting to use a particular supplier and the price seems reasonable it may be sensible to not insist on more than one quote. Knowing someone's work (assuming that their quote appears to offer value for money) is a big plus and increases the likelihood of the project going well so there is little point in having a procurement process, which involves quite a lot of effort for the potential suppliers, when a solution is already identified.

8. Reserves Policy

- 8.1. BASES is a not-for-profit organisation. As such, it needs to operate on the basis that it is not seeking to make a profit over the long term and surplus should be re-invested. Its present tax status is to only have to pay tax on its bank interest. Maintaining adequate reserves is essential to establishing financial stability. These reserves provide a cushion to deal with operating deficits that may arise because of unexpected events, economic uncertainties or lean funding periods. The Board need to ensure it keeps a certain level of financial reserves to ensure that it satisfies HM Revenue & Customs in terms of maintaining the present tax status of only having to pay tax on its bank interest and main operations can continue for a period of 6 months. The level of reserves should be monitored quarterly by the Board. This policy should be reviewed yearly and whenever there are significant changes in staffing costs.

9. Deputy Chair

- 9.1. When a Chair Elect is not in place, the Chair may appoint a Deputy Chair from the Board to take charge when the Chair is absent.
